COCKROACH ERADICATION

Cockroaches appear in greater numbers where they can find plenty to eat. Cleanliness is your first defence against this household pest.

To supplement your cleaning programme you can use a number of chemicals. One of these is now available locally in an aerosol spray can. It is sold commercially as "BAYGON INDUSTRIAL AEROSOL".

Remove all items from cupboards and place them on tables in the centre of the room and cover them with a table cloth or sheet.

If there are cupboards with false bottoms you should drill small holes in the false bottoms about 9" apart and just large enough to spray through.

Start spraying in the higher cupboards and systematically work downwards.

The aim is to drench all cracks, crevices and hiding places of the cockroaches with the spray. The space between the cupboards' framework and the walls, the cupboard shelves and the walls, the underside and back of the drawers, under the cupboard false bottoms, out of the way areas behind sinks, stoves (but not inside the stove), should all be examined and sprayed if necessary.

This should be done at night. Next morning wash out all the cupboards, shelves and bench tops. The building walls, cupboard framework, the area behind the sinks and other out of the way places need not be washed.

The treatment should be followed up by making weekly inspections and even if only one more cockroach is seen, more insecticide must be applied. In any case a follow-up application should be carried out each month for three months. The follow-up application need not be as extensive as the initial treatment and provided that care is used in directing the spray, the cupboards need not be emptied.

A most important part of the treatment is the follow-up work. With almost 100% kill on the initial treatment and no follow-up work, the infestation could re-establish itself within one or two weeks.

As you can see, there is NO EASY WAY OUT ONCE THEY ARE IN.

Y*O*U*T*H      C*E*N*T*R*E      Meeting

The LC Youth Centre committee was formed in 1965 to co-ordinate youth activities within the youth hall & to care for the hall & surrounds.

The constitution provides for towns-people interested in youth activities as well as representatives from the youth groups who use the hall.

Although it does not meet often, this small committee does help to preserve the towns' youth centre and is worthy of support.

An annual general meeting will be held in the supper room on Wednesday, 29 May, at 7.30 pm to elect officers and present a financial report.

Windlog Reports

The first match under way was the GREEN/ORANGE. Greens appeared disorganised early in the piece as misdirected passes & fumbling was evident. Lightning Foot Beal was holding the Green girls up with some very fine defence. Half-time saw the Green team leading and at this time they appeared to have the upperhand. The Orange shooters were having big mobs of trouble with some help in this respect with tight Green defence (you have a problem here Granny). Last half saw play improve and the Orange team (after a roasting from the Coach) showed more determination. On the day the Greens had more consistent girls than the Orange and won this one by some 3 or 4 goals. Best for Green:- I am going to give Lanky Sbona, who was solid in defence all day the first vote. Second to Robyn Place who I am told is now a permanent Green member and 3rd to Girlie Canham who again showed her skill at centre. Orange, you had good players in patches but for 4 quarters of good, solid netball, the vote must go to Lightning Foot Beal. Second I give to Marie Mac for a good, but patchy game and for working so hard (at times), I give third vote to Sherrie Ward.

BLACKS/BLUES was the next game to get underway and this proved to be the best game of the day. Blacks were first away and soon had a good score on the sheet. Blues were attacking but poor passing and ball fumbling was proving costly. Blacks were taking full advantage of these mistakes and capitalising on them. It was not until the 2nd quarter that Blues steadied and retaliated with goal shooters coming into the game and defence tightening. The last half was Blues, but unfortunately they had that lousy 1st quarter and Blacks came home winner. I bet a few members were quite happy not to win - two celebrations in a row would have been a bit hard to take! Blacks best to Stepper Smith. Although not brilliant she was very consistent all day, next to Jan Pryor who was running out of puff by the end of the match and 3rd to Vitality Val for a good consistent game at centre. Blues best I give to Leonie Ward. Twice now I have noticed you in defence Leonie, twice you have played well and I would say, that you have found your place eh! 2nd vote to Skipper Hill who put in another good shooting exhibition and 3rd I give to Heni-the-Penny in the defence area.

DEMONS met the RED in the final game and the Reds won this one comfortably. Play was good by both sides at times but shocking at other periods. Lotta-Dotta was going well at centre and combining well with her shooters and attack wing. Chris Donlin, back from holidays was fast running out of gas but trying hard all the time. Demons were getting good service from Louis McLaughlin, Sweetie Fee and Freena Kid (definitely on the improve). Reds best I'll give to Lotta-Dotta for a good exhibition at centre, 2nd to Chris Donlin and 3rd to Paulene Donlin in defence.

***I see a certain person walking around with a pencil & paper - must be some combined teams shaping up.***

Demons best, I feel were Louis McLaughlin (won your position on the day), 2nd to Joyce Callis whose defence was solid for most of the match and 3rd to Freena-Kid under the goal ring (must be running in the mud holes every morning for training).

THE THEATRE 62 PRODUCTION OF

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF THE GREAT SCHOLAR WU.

Company of Players:

James Chesworth - Robert Essen - Bridget Phillips - Huw Lewis -
Oliver Rosnay - Nicholas Lyon - John Rayment.

Directed by Chris Winzar

Original music by Nicholas Lyon

A Day in The Life of The Great Scholar Fu combines a play from Honan Province, from the ancient book of comedies (Ha Ha Chiao) and scenes from various Chinese operas. All are works by unknown Chinese authors.

This play was originally adapted from the Chinese and translated into German by Carl Weher, Peter Palitzsch and Bertolt Brecht. It was first produced in 1955 by the famous Berliner Ensemble under the direction of Brecht.

Brecht founded the Berliner Ensemble in 1949 in East Berlin after receiving substantial support from the Communist Government. It was a turning point in his life after years of bitter exile abroad he was able to return to Germany and establish a company which was to rapidly rise to world wide acclaim.

Brechts work is unique and its originality springs from his concept of the form and function of drama. He resolved to deminish and if possible do away with standard theatrical effects. He attempted to destroy any illusion of reality and any identification of character that would produce feelings of pity, fear, or involvement by an audience, in other words he wanted audiences to think about the message of the play rather than become emotionally involved. His characters were usually caricatures or distorted one dimensional mouth pieces. Despite its unconventional form Brechts plays and productions are rich, satirical, broadly comic, and vastly entertaining.

In this production of A Day in The Life of The Great Scholar Wu we attempt to meet Brecht at least halfway our characters are all clowns in a pantomime troupe and in the opening scene they appear as themselves, players on have stage setting up to perform a play for you and destroying all the conventional illusion of the theatre. The clowns jump in and out of different cartoon characters in a series of seven short scenes. Their comical routines and antics are never allowed to appear remotely realistic. All the scenarios are frequently interrupted and punctuated by musical passages.

All Berliner Ensemble productions were flavoured with Marxist ideology and each play has at least one sometimes very subtle socialist message for the audience. In this production we have delved into Chinese political philosophy and taken Mao Tse-Tung's bitter attacks on "Bourgeois Art and Capitalistic Culture" as the underlying motive for our play. It is a subtle even gentle piece of propaganda but it will serve to illustrate this unique form of theatre.

The character of Scholar Wu is played not as an ancient sage but as a young parasitic drop-out or bum who 'bludges' on the rich and well to do under a guise of an intellectual and man of letters. His opportunism is obvious yet hilarious and the collection of toadying servants grasping landowners and silly old women will certainly keep you vastly entertained. Yet don't be mislead there is a serious underlying motive to the play. We hope this will all be apparent to you and in the words of Brecht: "The thing is, I don't know what will come out when I do my job as best I can". Perhaps you our audience will know.
